Not illustrated. 1920 edition. Excerpt: .and Molor Company s Arc Welding Set. Another differentially wound generator, specially intended for electric arc welding work, is made by the Lancashire Dynamo and Motor Company, Limited, of Trafford Park, Manchester. It is shown coupled direct on the same bed-plate to its motor in Fig. 38, while a diagram of the windings of the two machines is given in Fig. 39. As will be observed, the arrangement of the winding is different in several particulars from the windings of the machines which have been described above. There is a shunt winding A which is connected across the armature of the generator, and has a regulator in circuit with it, and a series winding which is in the arc welding circuit, and there is a third separately excited winding B which, however, is arranged in series with the field winding of the motor across...
