Not illustrated. 1903 Excerpt: .this again ought to be conducted and the papers marked by the teacher who has had charge of the class in the given subject B. T. Davis, Superintendent of Schools, Winona, Minn. 10. Elementary education should be introduced with kindergarten instruction at about four years. The child will begin by acting and doing, the handling of things and the working out, through forms, his ideas and thought as developed to him. He will begin by the handling of forms, seeing and observing; following this by making and representing, and will be gradually led from the very concrete representations to more abstract written forms, following with oral and written language, through which reading soon becomes a part, and numbers have been a concrete companion from the start. Color has also been a companion of form. Nature study has been introduced from the very start. The child has...
